

MAN is a network of African and US institutions affiliated with the MERLOT organization.

I. The MAN Mission

Facilitate Communities of eLearning Expertise and Capacity Building for Open Education, Scholarship, and Development in Africa

MAN - Strategic Objectives

- (1) Build strong networked partnerships between African, US educational institutions and global eLearning providers that will result in joint education, research and development programs in Sub-Saharan Africa.
- (2) Extend the MERLOT Community of Practice to immediately serve the goals of providing access and quality eLearning resources and communities of eLearning expertise in Africa.
- (3) Build African expertise in the successful use and development of Open Education Resources (OER) and Open Access (OA) to support scalable eLearning curricula and scholarship.
- (4) Conduct educational research to guide the effective and sustainable pedagogical integration of OER and OA in eLearning design and research.
- (5) Organize expert meetings for sharing best practices, and social networking to improve the productivity and leadership of collaborative projects among members.

Network Partnerships

MAN facilitates various networked partnerships between network members that can lead to collaborative projects for development and innovations in the best practices for using OER and OA as eLearning solutions. Partners meet twice annually, during the MAN Forum on OER and OA, organized as part of eLearning Africa, held in different Africa Countries each year, and the MERLOT Africa Panels, during the annual MERLOT International Conference.

OER Services and Training

- MAN leverages MERLOT's active community of practice with over 60,000 members worldwide.
- The MERLOT.org website provides free access to over 20,000 eLearning resources covering a full range of academic and professional disciplines.
- MERLOT.org's free member services enable its members to compose and deliver online educational programs.
- MAN delivers Faculty Development certificates. The curriculum focusing on - raising awareness about OER and OA - and tools for designing educational resources and delivering eLearning.

Sister Campuses Partnerships

We promote and broker the creation of Sister Campuses between African and US Universities affiliated with MERLOT. These project-based partnerships promote international development and capacity building at the partner institutions.
